

Monday 21 September 2020 – Weekly Inspiration from Rev. Jason

Something about the cool fall weather speaks to me. These days bring about moments of deep peace as I sip my coffee in the morning, watching the sun come up from the porch, and when I sit on the back deck in the evening as I watch the stars. (For those who are interested, Mercury is visible to the naked eye in the Eastern sky in the morning, and Saturn & Jupiter are visible to the South in the evening.) In these moments, my day is book-ended by an abiding peace from God in the majesty of the world around us.

David reflects upon this presence in Psalm 19. "The heavens declare the glory of God; the skies proclaim the work of God's hands. Day after day they pour forth speech; night after night they reveal knowledge. They have no speech, they use no words; no sound is heard from them. Yet their voice goes out into all the earth, their words to the end of the world." (Ps. 19:1-4a).

How will you, in this day and in this week, allow your life to declare the glory of God? Where and when will you pause to allow the glory of God in the world around you to fill your spirit?

Lord, bless me with an awareness of your presence, and let me hear the words of joy sung by your creation. By your grace, let my life likewise sing with joy with others to hear, as well. Amen.
